About Lucknow - the Host City

Lucknow, the Capital of Uttar Pradesh, is the most densely populated city in India. It was the capital of Avadh from 1775. The fourth Nawab Asaf-ud-Daula transferred the capital of Avadh from Faizabad to Lucknow and began constructing some splendid architectural marvels, a tradition that was sustained by his successors. Some of the best monuments During in Lucknow are the Bara Imambara, Chota Imambara, Roomi Gate, etc. The period of Nawab's, Lucknow also established its prominent place in the field of poetry, music and dance. Lucknow has rich culture, architecture, music, dance handicrafts and etiquette. The local culture of Lucknow City and style of speaking Urdu like tashreef rakhaye, pahale aap and aap janab makes it different from apart of world. Lucknow is currently a fastest growing city in India that is witnessing an economic boom. The government departments and the public sectors are now offering lots of employment opportunities to the people. The Government of UP has a good plan for infrastructure and economic development hence many private companies are investing lot of money in Lucknow, and in this sense Lucknow is also the economical capital of Uttar Pradesh. Lucknow is also known for its reputed educational and research institutions through out India. Prominent place in the field of poetry, music and dance.

About the Host Institution - KGMU

The foundation for establishing a Medical College at Lucknow was laid down in 1905 to commemorate the visit of Prince of Wales to India. The King George's Medical College, Lucknow was established in October 1911; the year when his Majesty King George V and Queen Mary visited India. The college since then has been a front runner amongst medical institutions in the country. The first hospital associated with King George's Medical College was built in 1914. In 1956, this hospital had the distinction of being selected by the Rockefeller Foundation for setting up a Residency Training Programme and a 5 story Residents' Hostel. The college was selected as a site for establishment of a Clinical Epidemiology Unit by the International Clinical Epidemiology Network in 1991. The Unit was formally inaugurated and subsequently upgraded as the KGMC Institute of Clinical Epidemiology. The college has distinction of having 4000 beds belonging to over 35 specialties and super-specialties. By an Act passed by the Government of Uttar Pradesh on 16th September 2002, the College was made university and was renamed as Chhatrapati Shahaji Maharaj Medical University Lucknow. Later on it was renamed as King George's Medical University UP, Lucknow. The University has the privilege of accreditation by UGC & NAAC
